

I would not bother you with this at 9:00 at night if it wasn't such a big deal to me.....

Thought you needed to know, Mrs. Reed told [redacted] small group today that she was very upset and that she needed to gather her thoughts because she just got word that her grandchild was not in a safe place because someone was "touching them in an inappropriate way"

[redacted] is in complete stress with all of this! I do not feel like that was appropriate for her to tell her class this.

By all means this is terrible news and I am completely sad for this situation, but I don't think she needed to share this information with 3rd graders!

██████████ said child and grandchild. But she also sent the class/group back to their teachers early because she was crying and had to "gather her thoughts"

██████████ wouldn't have dreamed this up, she had so many questions tonight about what she was told.

Interesting

I'll check it out

The wording she used was not something ██████████ would ever say or really know.

She even mention being "choked" and "touched" IDK, but it sounds like an interesting conversation they has today.
